TGIM WEEKLY AUDIO: Exceeding the Minimum

Transcription*

Thank God It's Monday!™ Do you pay the minimum amount on your credit cards each month? If you do, you might want to take a close look at your next statement. Give the minimum and it can take seven to ten years, or twelve years, to pay off the balance. But pay more than the minimum and you'll polish it off in a fraction of that time—and pay a whole lot less interest.

Now apply the same logic to your job. If you're just doing the minimum, you might be digging yourself a hole. If you think it's okay to have your coat on at 4:59, for example, you might end up being the first one out the door in a whole new way. Instead, make a point of exceeding the requirements of your job. Blowing past expectations is the best way to make yourself irreplaceable.

Have a great Monday!
