TGIM WEEKLY AUDIO: Results Trump Brains

Thank God It's Monday![™] You know the guy... he aced every test, answered every question correctly. The all-around classroom standout. You've fallen out of touch with him since high school graduation, but given his academic record, you're convinced he's a billionaire somewhere.

It's possible, but it's just as likely that you're wrong. In fact, a nationwide study found that people of below average intelligence were, overall, just as wealthy as those with higher IQs.

So what does this mean? You're smart enough! Achieving monetary success is not simply a product of the brain. Moreover, you control your success.

Look at your latest paycheck—the number you're looking at is a direct reflection of what you think you're worth, because if it wasn't, you would change it. Things like, how badly you want it, persistence, and outside support, dramatically affect success.

Don't limit yourself. Never assume you know less. You have the ability to make it, but only as far as YOU BELIEVE you can go, and you commit to deliver massive results!

Have a great Monday!
